Awake, o my soul!

The night is far spent;

The day is at hand:

Let us therefore cast off the works of darkness;

And let us put on the armour of light.

LEADERSHIP

"This grand show is eternal. It is always sunrise somewhere;
the dew is never all dried at once; a shower is forever falling; vapor is ever rising. Eternal sunrise eternal sunset, eternal dawn and gloaming on sea and continents and island, each in its turn as the round earth rolls."

John Muir

School Board

The School board this year has been faced with many perplexing problems. The most major difficulty has arisen in the new state approach for school district funding. Aside from the lack of funds, the board has been working closely with the student council to establish better student relationships. With this new open attitude of the board there is hopes that the school may be made more beneficial to all students in the area.

Student Council

The Student Council of our school works in close correlation with the administration and faculty to make our school a better one. The Council is established to act as representative of the students, to regulate school activities, they are over-all student organizers which represent everyone in the school. The Student Council has acted with the faculty on many of the problems of our school activities. The Council is one of the most active organizations in our school system today.

Mr. Robertson

The position of superintendent is immensely demanding. It is pressed with the problems from elementary through high school. Aside from these duties Mr. Robertson is also the high school principal, a job which is challenging for any man. However, Mr. Robertson succeeded in bringing forth a stronger sense of communication between students and teachers.

Mr. Robertson enjoys the whimsical comments about teacher's salaries.

One of the many pressing duties of administration is rigorous paper work.

Mr. Hoopes And Mr. Gallemore

This radiant smile, shown by Mr. Burl Hoopes, has had a profound influence on junior high school students.

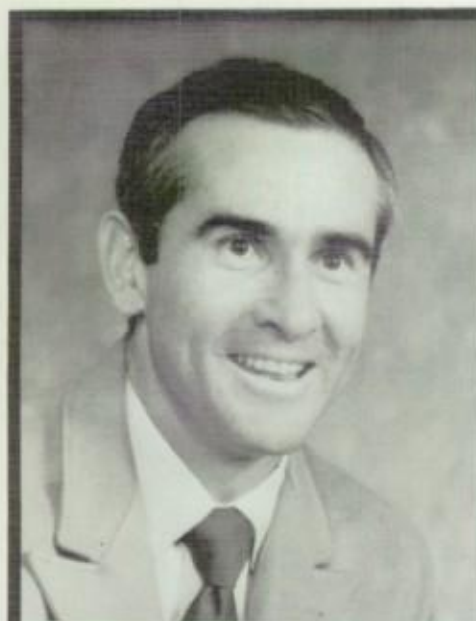

Mr. Gallemore has shown to be an able administrator at the elementary school level.

Mr. Burl Hoopes performs the duties of junior high school principal. He also teaches math at the junior high level.

The elementary school has progressed appreciatively during the past two years under the leadership of Mr. John Gallemore. Mr. Gallemore is also the coordinator for curriculum development for the entire Big Piney School System.

"If the teacher is indeed wise, he does not bid you enter the house of his wisdom, but rather leads you to the threshold of your own mind."

Special Services

Mrs. Lucy Wilkerson shows her typical smile to students who are entering the high school library.

The medical aid of our school system is enhanced by the warm affection shown by Mrs. Sylvia Shaffer.

Under the title of special services works Mrs. Wilkerson, high school librarian; Mrs. Patterson, elementary and middle school librarian; Mrs. Weaver, remedial reading teacher; and Mrs. Schaffer, school nurse. These are some of the most dedicated people in the Big Piney Schools.

Our remedial reading department in the elementary school is maintained by Mrs. Marijean Weaver.

Mrs. Glenda Patterson scans more literature suitable for the library.

Secretaries

Sharron Pearson-Business Manager

Opal Orr-Junior High Secretary

Sandra Carr-Secretary to Board of Trustees and Superintendent

Madeline Weber-High School Secretary

Lora Grinestaff-Elementary Secretary

Hard working doesn't define the secretaries of the Big Piney school system, but of course, laziness doesn't either. Posting of activity funds, payroll checks, lunch cards, bulletins, answering phones, heckling teachers, approving student activity purchases, keeping the attendance records and handing out unexcused tardy slips, these are just a few of the duties the secretaries perform. Although their cheerful faces each morning aren't one of their duties, one can always expect a smile whenever entering one of their offices.

Cooks

These women deserve much credit for the long hours they put in each day planning and preparing nutritious meals for the students of the school system. Always extending a warm, gracious smile, they are willing to help out in many extracurricular situations, such as banquets and breakfasts. Their kindness and dedication is greatly appreciated.

Checking the progress of the main course, Mrs. Holgate makes certain there is plenty of food for everyone.

Olive and Mary clean up after a hot day in the kitchen.

Right (l-r): John Snively, Lance Hill. Below: John
Jullian, Mrs. John Snively,

Asay, Mike Murdock.

Custodians

Brooms, mops, and garbage cans - all are a part of the typical day of the custodian. These people may often go unnoticed, yet they are as important to the maintenance of the school system as prop men are to a Broadway play, and are always around to lend a hand.

The water continually flowed and flowed and yet it was always there; it was always the same and yet every moment it was new.

Hermann Hesse

Juniors

With only one year left ahead of them, the juniors exercised great freedom in planning and preparation of their class activities. The Junior Prom, held at the Pit and Primer Supper Club, set a new precedent at BPHS. In the past, all proms have been held at the school, decorated around a central theme. This year, however, the juniors spent the major portion of their money on a band, CAPTAIN FLASH from Salt Lake City, and a few decorations, such as candles and flowers, providing for a truly unique evening of dancing.

Besides putting on a prom, the members of the junior class were actively involved this year in the production of a junior class play entitled "A Man Called Peter," which was an outstanding success. With all of their involvements, the class made this year one that they will long remember.

Sophomores

The newness of high school has worn off. Now the sophomores can spread their wings and search the broad horizons of opportunity at Big Piney High School, and find fun at the same time.

Under the Guiding Hands of Mr. Keith Moyer and Mr. Roy Clark, the class experienced a very successful and energetic year. Spring came, bringing with it anxious preparations for the annual Sophomore Carnival, a vital money-making project for financing a prom in their junior year. Full participation from everyone made this carnival an unforgettable success.

The sophomores' never-ending awareness and enthusiasm have set a fine example for future sophomore classes, strengthening the entire backbone of the school system at the same time.

Sophomores find not only a time for fun and laughter with friends . . .

but also moments of solitude to reflect upon their lives.

Let your best be for your friend . . .
in the sweetness of friendship let there be laughter and sharing of pleasures.
For in the dew
of little things, the heart finds its morning, and is refreshed.

Kahlil Gibran

Freshmen

No longer a part of the middle school routine, the freshmen must take upon themselves a new load of unexpected responsibilities, and leave their bubblegum and sock hops behind. A rainbow of new experiences quietly await them, beginning with holding a Freshman Raffle to put some financial stability into their class treasury.

The freshmen survived the anxieties that faced them in their first year of high school, and also learned that BPHS is more than just an institution for secondary education. Going for the first overnight trip, trying out for a play for the first time, or dancing at the first Junior Prom, the freshmen start their fast, upward climb that leads to graduation.

ORGANIZATIONS

There are so many dreams beyond your night, and so much sunshine behind your grey walls,
but you can't see it because you stay at home.

Publications

Starting left and going clockwise: Annual and newspaper editor Kathy Lawrence struggles to meet a deadline; Jo Pike proofreads newspaper copy; Pam Boe calls on business for the annual; Debbi Meyer dummies up a newspaper article.

Anyone who has worked with publications knows the frustrations it brings, as well as rewards. This year the newspaper, PINEY PROFILES, survived only with the help of Mr. Phil Quink, advisor.

Annual Staff

To portray every emotion, every moment, for every person during the school year would be impossible. Through an inconceivable amount of hard work, we have tried the best we can, even though it often meant getting up at 5 a.m. to catch a sunrise, or meeting a deadline at 3:30 in the morning. We have put together this book as a memory of how we saw this year. Perhaps the reader will share some of these memories with us.

There are many people, although not pictured here, who deserve sincere thanks for their help. We would like to acknowledge many for their help in preliminary stages of the book: Lynn Tanner, Lisa Cox, Zania Hubbert, Linda Hoopes, Debbie Hoffman, Jay McGinnis, Belle Wassenberg, Karen Budd, and the photo staff. Those who lended their assistance when the going got rough were Debbie Stewart, Becky Lawrence, Jim Hairston, Marty Preston, Doug Barker, and Judy Springman. Our special thanks to those who helped (unknowingly) to maintain our sanity: The Moody Blues, Judy Collins, and Chase's Drive In. To everyone and anyone that we might have forgotten in the middle of the night, we extend our deepest appreciation for helping to make this annual, the 1973 PUNCHER, a beautiful success.

Photography Staff

There is no doubt about it; photographers are definitely an unusual breed. Their creativity and imagination, combined with their ability to paint masterpieces with a lens, rather than a brush, are rare qualities.

This year, with the introduction of a photography course in the school, came a staff of outstanding photographers who have contributed to the message of this book by spending half their time in the darkroom, and the other half with a camera around the neck. It has been a pleasure to have worked with such greatly patient and talented individuals.

The most select honorary in the school, the National Honor Society each year inducts new members after nominees have been reviewed and accepted for membership on the basis of their qualifications. Inductees must meet set standards in areas of Character, Scholarship, Leadership, and Service, and maintain these qualities to remain in the organization, which is involved in innumerable activities for the benefit of the school.

In attempt to better meet the needs of the female students at Big Piney High School, the Girls' Athletic Association was organized this year, and Pep Club was disbanded. Members of GAA encourage athletic competition among schools, as well as sponsoring intramurals. Under the organization, the girls' athletic program showed a marked spurt of growth in the school this year, as the volleyball, swimming, gymnastics, and track teams all flourished in training and competition.

The school store, under the management of the GAA, was opened this year to sell concessions and school supplies, and members of the organization worked in it on a volunteer basis. Girls with the most points at the end of the year were awarded GAA letters, and an overnight camping trip concluded the year for the organization.

Advisors Murdock and Skinner work together for the betterment of the organization.

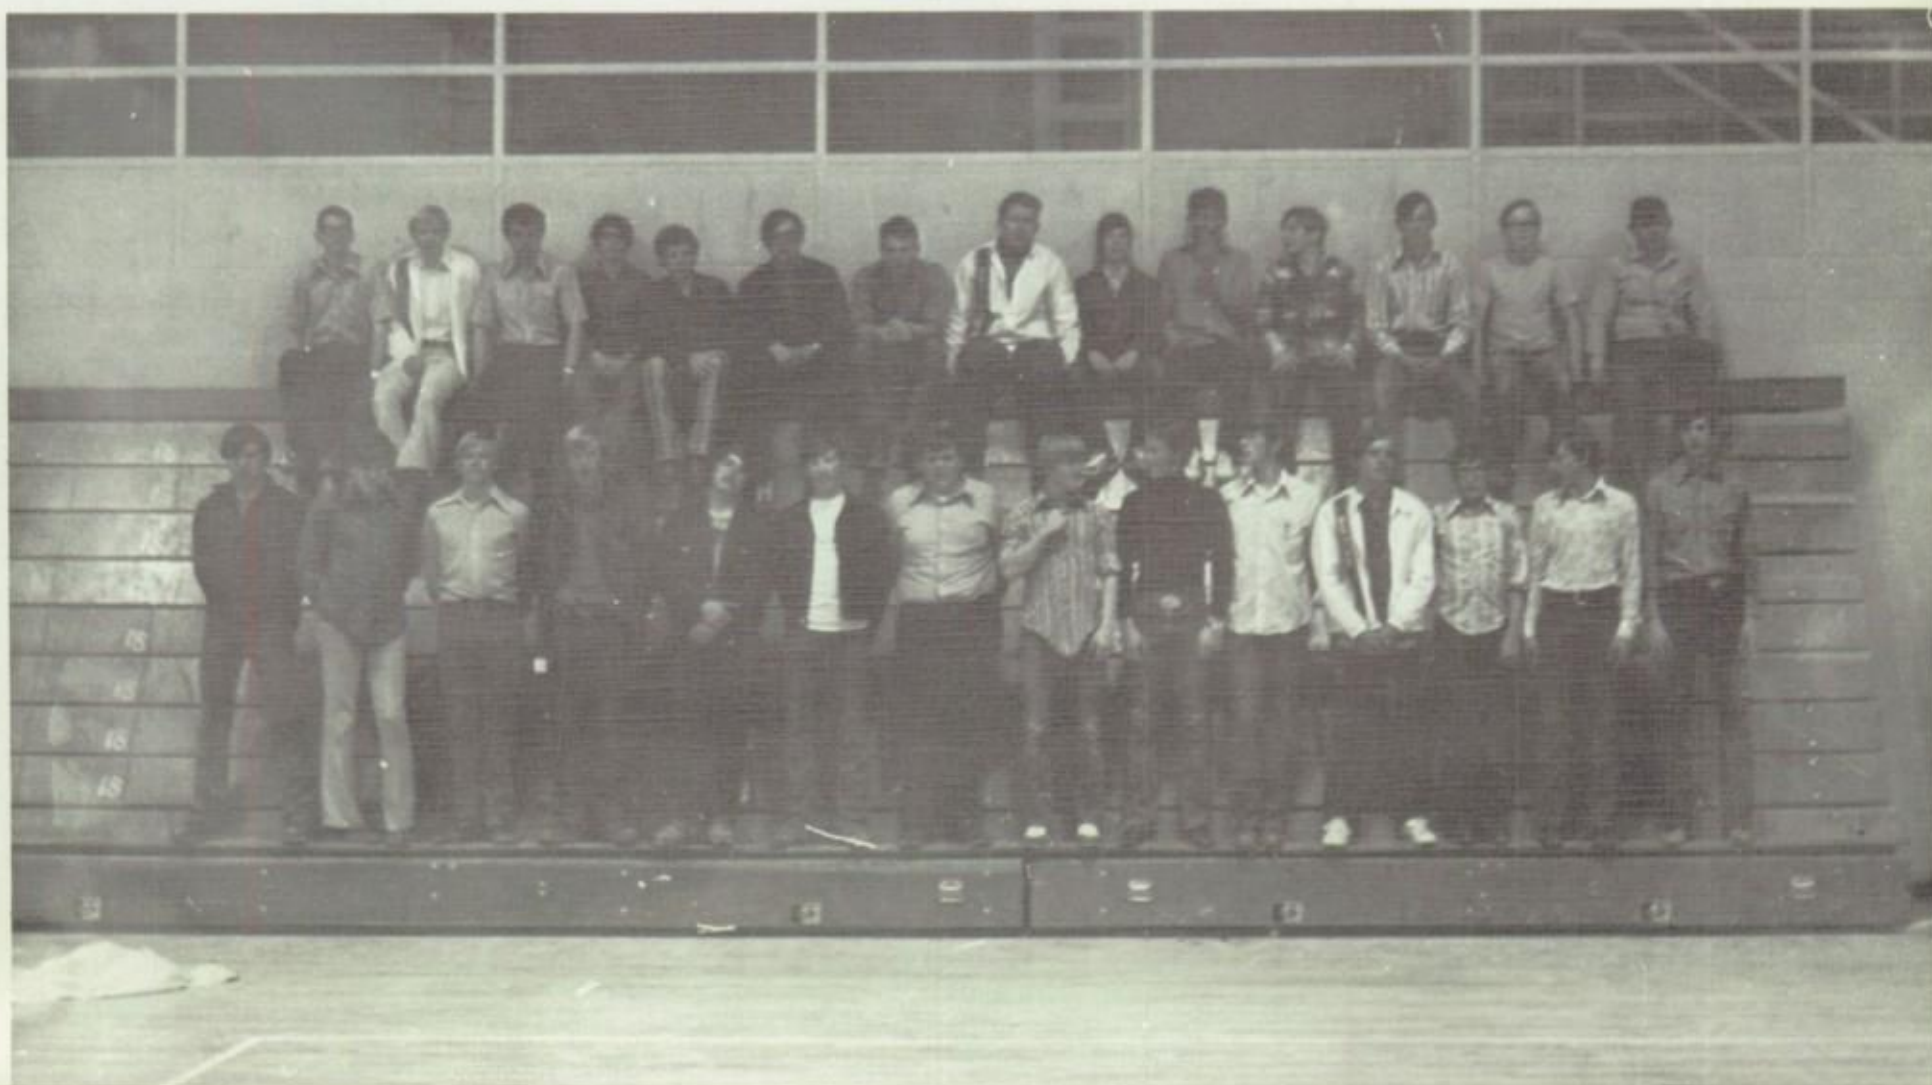

Lettermen's Club

Open to varsity letter recipients only, the Lettermen's Club seeks to upgrade the caliber of the athletic program at Big Piney High School through football, swimming, basketball, and track competition. Aside from participation on teams, the members were involved in many activities this year, including preparing their annual public Easter breakfast, and selling Spook Insurance at Halloween. Through the efforts of the organization, many letters were awarded at the end of the year at a special Athletic Awards Assembly.

Cheerleaders

Cheerleading is not just donning a red and white uniform and yelling "Go Punchers!" Cheering is more than showing the team you are supporting them whether they win or lose. The most difficult task for a cheerleader is creating an atmosphere of student spirit and support for the school team. This can only be achieved through a lot of effort, determination, and spirit.

A cheerleader, after her selection, immediately takes upon herself the responsibility of being a catalyst of enthusiasm for the entire student body. Sometimes cheerleaders feel down and out, but when a player comes up after a game and says, "Thanks for coming," it makes it all very worthwhile.

Puncherettes

Putting in long, exhausting hours of practice every week during the school year, the Puncherettes' main purpose is to provide half-time entertainment at football and basketball games, as well as present the flag. Under the direction of Miss Sue Galley, the girls work cooperatively to develop and perfect routines to drum cadences, showing-off sharp skills and formations.

Throughout the year, the drill team exchanged invitations with neighboring schools to march at games. To be a Puncherette, a girl must be proud of her school and show it through a happy smile and precise marching. She must also be devoted and have a lot of self-discipline to give of her time, but every minute of it is worth it.

The crowd eagerly waits to see what formation the girls will go into next.

Red And White Council

Robin Miley enjoys a hamburger in the student lounge, where everyone goes when there's nowhere else to go.

The basic objective of the Red and White Council, an organization formed only a few years ago, is to promote "pride" in all academic and allied activities of Big Piney High School. One way in which pride has been established by this group is through their concentrated effort in sponsoring a recognition bulletin board. Special recognition has been given to both individual and group accomplishments through the use of clever bulletin board displays during the school year.

Although the definition of pride in the high school may not be clear to everyone, the Red and White Council members help students feel a part of Big Piney High School, and at least have a positive attitude about school life.

Foreign Language Club

No comprenden Espanol? The members of the Foreign Language Club may not be the most fluent in Spanish either, yet their interest and desire to learn has kept the organization alive, under the sponsorship of Spanish instructor Mrs. Sandra Owen. Together the members of this club have participated in many fun and educational activities, including past competition in the state Foreign Language Festival.

Through the use of games, such as a Spanish version on Monopoly, and other means, the Foreign Language members have had an enjoyable year. Now if everyone could just understand what they say . . .

Interested speech members attend the District Debate Clinic hosted by Pinedale in the fall of the year.

This year there were many members in Speech Club, and all but a few were on the Speech Team. Those competing attended preliminary meets at Rock Springs and Green River, as well as hosting the Big Piney Invitational, and went on to the District Meet in Rock Springs and the State Meet in Casper. Those attending the Casper meet were Carol Crockett (dramatics), Kathy Lawrence (oratory), Zania Hubbert (humorous), Lynn Tanner (poetry), Lisa Cox (extemporaneous), Belle Wassenberg (humorous), Karen Budd (extemporaneous), Dee Findlay (oratory), and Julie Lynch (dramatic). The meet was described later as "a great experience, thought provoking, excruciatingly long, competitive, very different, and wildly funny." The Speech Team definitely will return next year.

Students Toward Environmental Participation

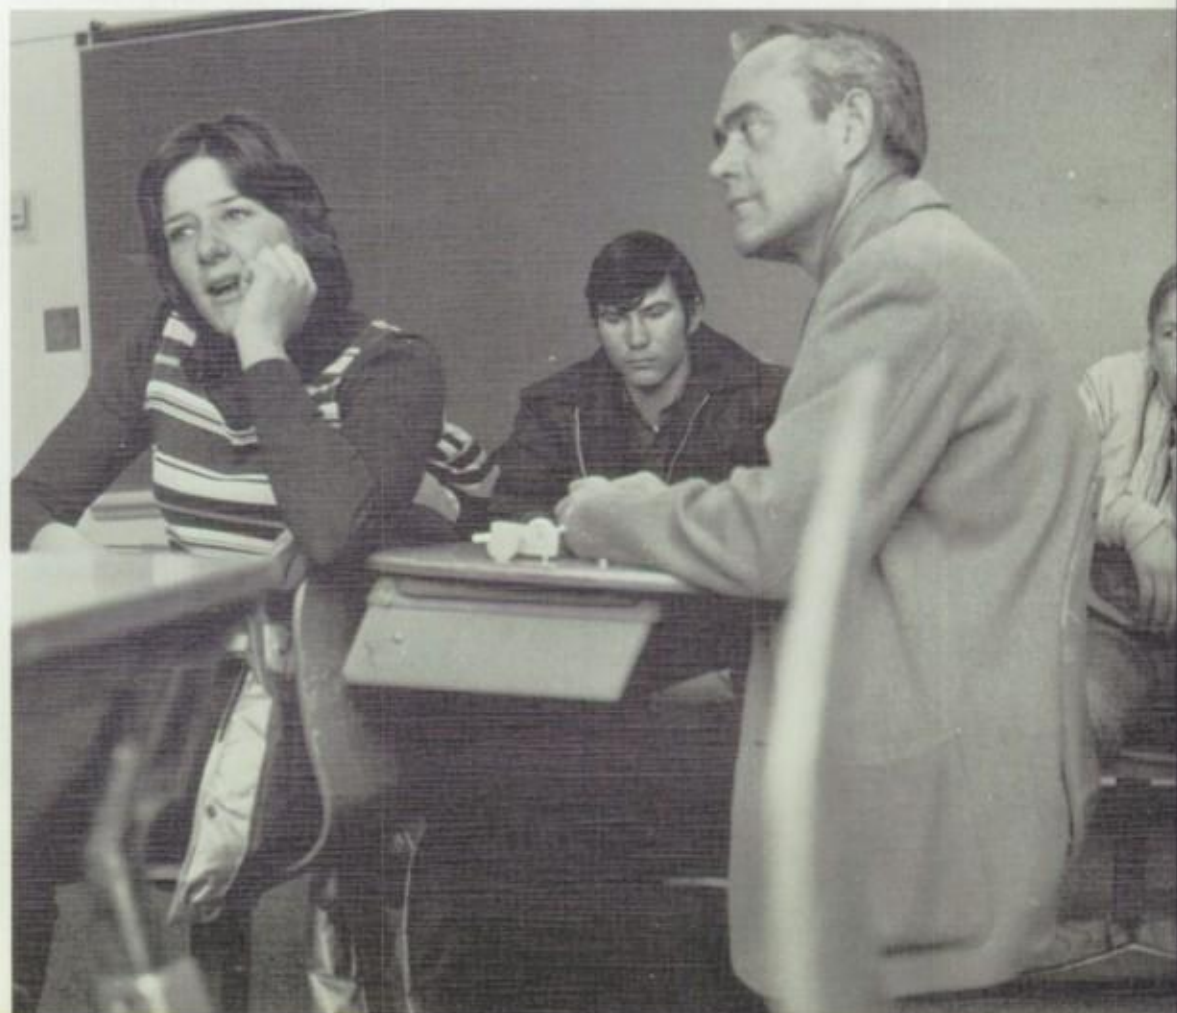

Students Toward Environmental Participation (STEP) became organized this year when Big Piney students were invited to attend the Second World Conference of National Parks in Jackson as the only high school representatives. The inspired students were asked to pioneer the STEP program in the western states by helping people become more involved in preserving their natural environment. Their aim now is to get more members, so as to encourage a greater awareness of the beautiful natural surroundings of Wyoming.

Mrs. McKinley and Jean Murdock discuss teaching methods.

Actively involved in aiding the educational system, the Big Piney Chapter of Future Teachers of America not only has a student teaching program, but private tutoring as well. College-bound high school students with a desire or interest in teaching this year were able to help in many areas, in elementary classroom situations, music groups, and physical education and home economics classes.

Several members of the organization also attended the state convention in Cheyenne during the fall, where Linda Hoopes was elected state Historian, and the Big Piney voting delegates proposed several changes of significance to the state organization.

The Punchers wrapped up their 1972 football season with a 5-4 record, with big wins over both Lyman and Mt. View at home and on the road. Throughout the season, whether victorious or not, the team members displayed great spirit, never losing their drive to win.

Four outstanding members of the Puncher team were singled out for all-conference and all-state recognition. Starting near-right and following to far-right they were: Mark Mickelson, defensive tackle (UPI); Solon Murdock, linebacker (UPI and Casper Star, all classes); Mike Bury, halfback (Wyoming Coaches Association) and linebacker (honorable mention, UPI); and Jay Orr, end (honorable mention, UPI).

The fans may have gotten discouraged, but the Punchers certainly were not. After a difficult, trying season, which brought more than their share of losses, the varsity basketball team once again proved that they could pull through, and brought home a second place trophy from district tournament play. Unmatched suspense and excitement was experienced by overflow crowds, as the Punchers narrowly swept by the Cokeville Panthers to qualify for state tournament competition.

Snow fell on the Punchers' plans, however, and instead of displaying their ability on the basketball court, they were forced to sit captive in a Laramie motel room and eat pizzas delivered on snowmachines. But every season has its ins and outs, and the Punchers, making the best of the breaks they got, stuck together for a remarkably excellent season.

Girls' Swimming

Some people practically live in the water, and love it. Such is the case with the seven devoted mermaids of the BPHS girls' swimming team, who not only demonstrated ability and endurance in their first year of competition, but style and grace as well.

The swimmers participated in a number of meets throughout the season, receiving strong support from fans of the student body and community. Their long hours of faithful practice were indeed successfully rewarded as they helped to promote girls' interschool athletic competition.

Striving for perfection in its second year, the Puncher swim team started out the season beautifully with a clean victory over Lyman. All during the season the swimmers continued to show great team spirit and individual performance, finishing with a 5-3 record.

At the district meet in Green River, the boys finished third, and continued to perform at the state meet in Cody, where they ranked fifth place. Kris Carroll, freestyle, finished second at state, and Ted Wright placed first in diving competition.

After many long hours of practice, as well as physical and mental dedication, the girls' volleyball team successfully captured the Southwest Wyoming district championship and qualified for state. Big Piney High School was the only B-class school represented in the state tournament, in which eight of the best teams of Wyoming high schools competed in November of 1972.

Although the volleyball program has only been in existence for two years at Big Piney, the team members, under the superb coaching of Mrs. Toni Murdock, demonstrated superiority despite the infancy of the program. The girls experienced all phases of emotion, from the exhaustion of a rigorous training session, to the thrill of victory and the happiness of team friendship.

With the introduction of girls' athletics at Big Piney High School, a gymnastics team was organized this year for interested girls to develop their skills in the various areas of gymnastic expression. Although the team did not compete, a foundation has been established for doing so in the future.

The members of the gymnastic department were open to practice on a number of different pieces of equipment, such as the balance beam, side horse, parallel bars, and mats. Under the direction of Coaches Skinner and Murdock, the girls worked hard to prepare for building a top gymnastics program.

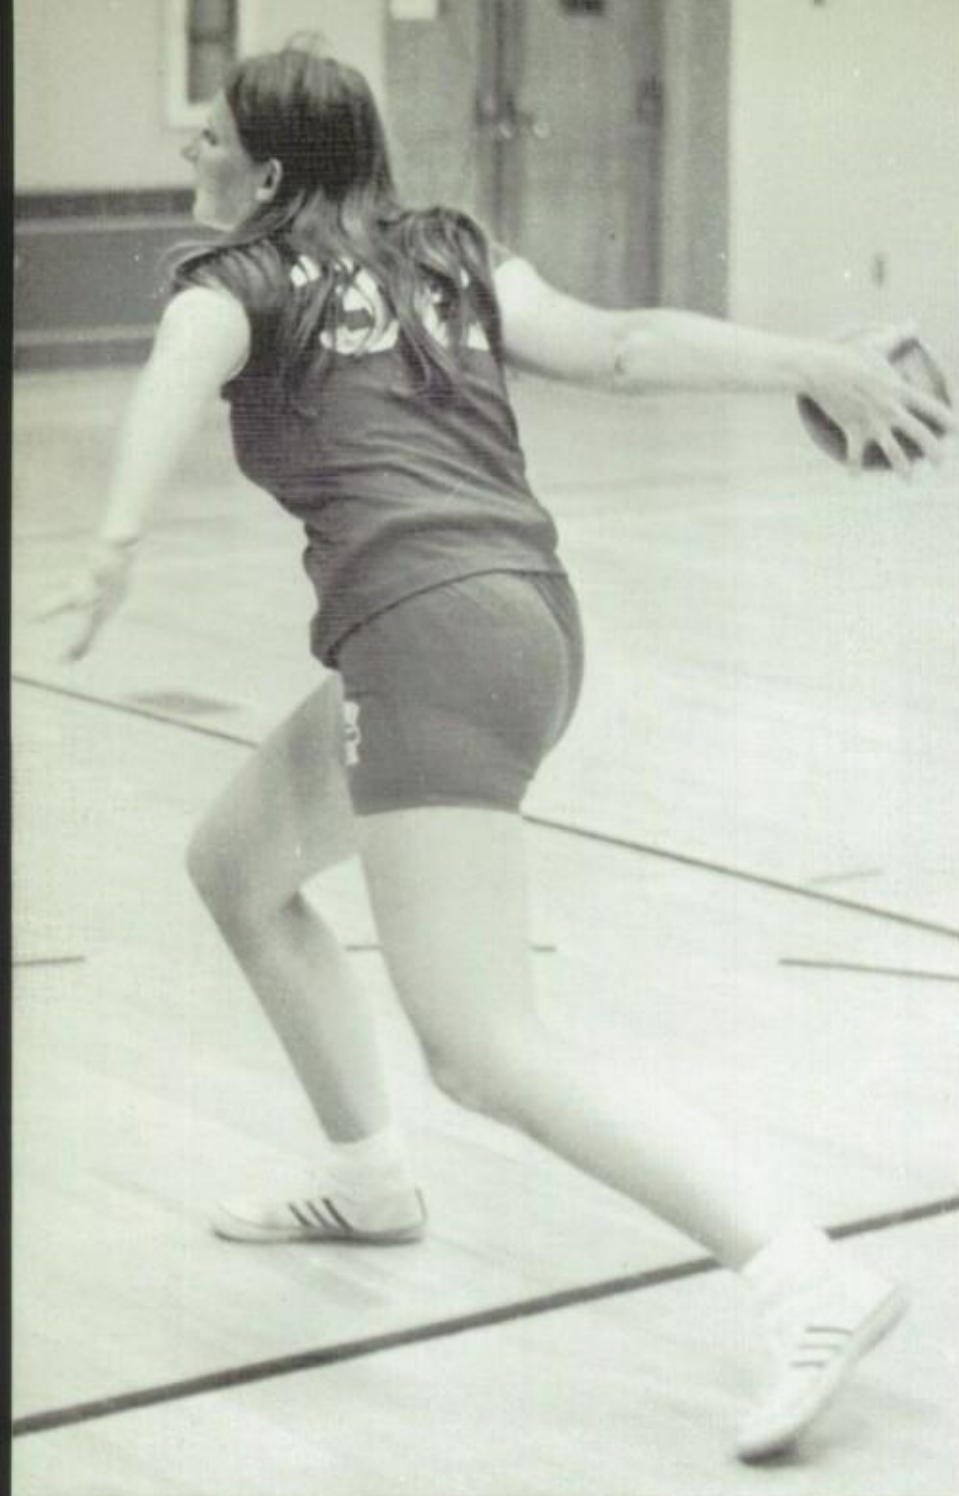

Right: Displaying grace and form, Lynn performs one of the more common positions on the balance beam.

Springing to life this year, the girls' track team set many new records in track and field events, and brought unexpected, unprecedented honors to the school. Many long hours of strenuous after-school practice readied the girls for fine showings at several area meets. After qualifying at district, three BPHS track stars went on to state competition (Carol Crockett, Gaila Griggs, and Janice Shorma). The team members are already preparing to be off-and-running for a lively season next year.

Boys' Track

On your mark, get set - everyone was in for a pleasant surprise as the trackmen of BPHS took off for a fast-paced season of thrills and excitement. Close competition in area meets brought the team members more together than they had over been before, working spiritedly as a true team, and not merely a group of individuals. Mike Bury, an outstanding track competitor, took high-point honors in several meets, and went on to take second place in the 100 at state. Other trackers who went on to state competition were Solon Murdock, Mark Mickelson, Jim Porter, Marlowe Scherbel, Eddy Bollinger, Jay Orr, and Rich Williams.

The season will be looked back upon as one of the most worthwhile ever, not in terms of record-breaking successes, but in strengthening the team and track program as a unit.

Choir

Refuting the claim that strength comes from numbers, the Big Piney High School choir was awarded its fourth consecutive superior trophy at District Music Festival in April. The choir, the smallest ever under the direction of Mrs. Susan Northway, performed all types of music literature throughout the year, ranging from classical to folk-rock.

Expression came from the heart as the singers worked together to achieve a beautiful blend of voices with the emotional impact of a choir twice its size. Through experimentation and listening sessions, the members of the choral music department are continuously striving to reach the total musical experience.

Student director Bardy Bardin rehearses the choir in preparation for graduation, their final performance of the year.

Concert Band

One hour a day, four days a week, a group of musically inclined BPHS students get together with Mr. Ernest Northway for the purpose of sharing music, as well as friendship and laughter. This year the concert band again took top honors at contest with a superior rating, well-deserved after hours of practice sessions where anything can and does happen.

During their highly successful year, the concert band performed at concerts in the winter and the spring, as well as providing traditional music at graduation. The pep band, composed of concert band members, played at pep assemblies and games during the year, lending support to the school. For an instrumental music program whose level is rapidly climbing, this was a great year, not likely to be forgotten.

Preparing for a band trip, Northway checks out details on the other end to confirm motel reservations.

After walking 22 miles, and then riding on a bus for another 750, the cries of "Reno or bust!" had stopped. The Big Piney High School stageband had arrived at the 12th annual Reno International Jazz Festival to prove themselves in competition, heated since they were from a high school with the smallest enrollment at the festival. But the stageband pulled through, and the emotion and excitement of the group when they received superior ratings in the Pioneer Theatre would be hard to match.

It was not an easy year, but the cohesiveness of the stageband kept everything going. Aside from tough and tiring rehearsals, there were walkathons to walk and uniforms to make, as well as the hassles that come from being the first group from Wyoming to attend the festival. The rewards were tremendous, however, and the fun of the casinos and the car shows brought the stageband members even closer together to put on a magnificent concert at the end of the year. The reputation this group has worked so hard for has been well earned.

Art And Drama

Adding to the fine arts program of the school, two courses were offered this year for individual exploration and fulfillment. Art, instructed by Mrs. Susan Northway, offered opportunities for both beginning and advanced students in all types of media, including watercolors, acrylics, oils, pastels, and block and silkscreen printing. Special emphasis was also placed this year on pottery, silver and jewelry making, and elements of design, especially fashion and interior design. Members of the class assisted with posters and decorations for school and community activities as well, and presented an exhibit at the end of the year for the public.

A new course at BPHS, drama taught students the technical aspects of the theatre, including a course in stage make-up. Students of the class, which was under the direction of Mr. Rex Burnham, assisted in the major productions of the year, as well as putting on an "Evening of One-Act Plays," which was presented to a limited audience by special invitation.

Homecoming King And Queen

Solon Murdock and Pam Boe

Reigning over the 1972 Homecoming, King Solon Murdock and Queen Pam Boe found festivities to be somewhat different than they had been in the past. Instead of the traditional homecoming parade, with its menagerie of paper floats, a talent program was launched, featuring a variety of skits and musical entertainment, with special focus on getting alumni more involved. Volleyball games, with teams composed of students, faculty, and alumni, immediately followed. The football game remained the same, and after a rough afternoon with Pinedale gridders, everyone retired to an evening of dancing to the music of "Ba-Boom-Ba."

Interschool Music Clinic

Student musicians from Jackson, Pinedale, Cokeville, Star Valley, and Kemmerer came to Big Piney on November 17th and 18th for an intensive interschool clinic in band and chorus under the direction of two excellent guest conductors. A Saturday evening concert presented many various musical emotions to a capacity crowd at the end of the two-day experience.

Jr. Class Play

The writings of Catherine Marshall once again came to life as the junior class presented the award-winning play "A Man Called Peter" on December 1st. Confronted with infinite trials and afflictions, Dr. Peter Marshall, portrayed by Marlowe Scherbel, remains unwavering in his dependence on the Almighty, and offers strength to many in this meaningful production. Sheree Grinestaff, in the role of Marshall's wife Kate, displays courage and unselfishness toward all, despite her acute sufferings from tuberculosis. Completing the cast, L. Hoopes, B. Kysar, K. Woffinden, C. Moffat, J. Pike, C. Guio, C. Bardin, D. Daniels, and D. Iverson all helped make this a memorable play.

Christmas Program

In the height of the joy and anticipation of the Christmas season, a concert was presented by the music students from first grade through high school. Substituting for Mrs. Northway in her leave of absence, Mrs. Ruth Ann Carroll directed the elementary and middle school singing groups, while Mr. Northway conducted the high school choir in a number of Christmas songs, ranging in style from "Day By Day" from "Godspell" to traditional music such as "Carol of the Bells." Adding variety to the program, grade school children danced to "Frosty the Snowman," and acted out "The Night Before Christmas" in pantomime.

Evening Of One-Act Plays

In the middle of January, the drama class, under the instruction of Rex Burnham, presented an evening of one-act plays to a limited, adult audience. The students worked out every aspect of the productions, including lighting and make-up, by themselves, as well as doing a superb job of acting.

Winter Band Concert

The January let-down after Christmas was lifted when the instrumental music department presented a Winter Band Concert for the public. The concert featured bands from fifth grade on up, and provided an opportunity for the community to hear the stageband for the first time this year. All-School Play "Mouse on Mars," a full-length comedy adapted by Christopher Sergel from the book by Leonard Wibberley, was presented on March 9th by an all-star cast. The play, a sequel to the 1967 production of "The Mouse that Roared," is a hilarious comedy about Grand Fenwick, the smallest country in the world, and its unexpected intervention in the space race.

Betsy Greenwood played the part of Gloriana the Twelfth, young duchess of Grand Fenwick, and Tully Bascomb, her consort husband, was portrayed by Solon Murdock.

Vincent of Mountjoy (Bardy Bardin) and Cynthia Benter (Marilyn Wright), whose fathers oppose each other in Parliament, strike up the major romance in the production. Mark Mickelson played the aristocratic Count Mountjoy, and the leader of the opposition, Mr. Benter, was played by Ted Wright. Marlowe Scherbel was cast in the role of Professor Kokintz, the nuclear physicist with a compassion for boblinks who leads the expedition to Mars on a bottle of wine. Completing the cast were K. Hill, D. Yancy, K. Wright, L. Tanner, L. Fackrell, L. Cox, J. Pike, J. Carr, D. Findlay, K. Lawrence, Z. Hubbert, B. Lawrence, D. Iverson, C. Bardin, A. Vickrey, and D. Barp. The play was directed by Mr. Rex Burnham.

Stageband Concert

The junior high stageband loosens up onstage.

Excitement. The evening was filled with it as Stageband '73 finished a more than spectacular year with a concert featuring almost two hours worth of music. Moods changed from hard, throbbing rock to jazz, and even mellow charts. Soloists were spotlighted throughout the night's program, which also included music by the junior high stageband. It was a memorable concert, complete with laughing, crying, and singing. The curtain closed as an overflow audience gave the stageband a standing ovation.

Sophomore Carnival

A spirit of frolic and frivolity filled the air as the sophomore class put on their annual carnival in the month of March. Each year the carnival is held for the purpose of making money for the Sophomore treasury, as well as helping out other classes and organizations in the school that sponsor booths. Everything from fishing ponds to door prizes and marriage booths could be found, and there was even a "jail" for troublemakers. With everyone working together, the carnival proved to be a tremendous success.

Ralph Linn and Mike Olson try to determine a winner in the freshman booth.

Running the junior booth, Jo and Marlowe try to persuade people to buy their homemade pies.

Brad Wright and Walter Bohannon hold a conference before guessing how many beans are in the senior bean jar.

District Music Festival

In April, members of the music department went to Evanston where the choir, concert band, and stageband all received superior ratings. Marilyn Wright had the district privilege of performing her flute solo on the Honors Concert for the second year in a row.

Starting right and going clock wise: Marilyn Wright practices her flute solo; the saxophone quartet (Carrie Moffat, Dale Iverson, Dorene Duncan, Marlene Clark) receive medals for their excellent rating; Mr. Northway presents the superior trophies to the school; vocal soloists and accompanist relax on the patio; the flute trio, which received superior ratings, poses in the bandroom.

... and the band played on.

Junior Prom

As a first this year, Prom was held at the Pit and Primer. A banquet, featuring alumni speakers Laurie McGinnis and Paul A. Scherbel, immediately preceded dancing to the music of CAPTAIN FLASH from Salt Lake City. The efforts of the junior class made the evening enjoyable for all.

At the banquet, Paul A. Scherbel addresses juniors and seniors on the importance of making decisions.

Graduation

Commencement exercises took place on May 18, 1973, in the Big Piney High School gymnasium, with Dr. James Anderson from the State Department of Education as guest speaker. The valedictory address was delivered by Kathy Lawrence, and Becky Lawrence gave the salutatory welcome. Directed by senior Bardy Bardin, the high school choir sang, "No Man Is An Island," and the high school band provided traditional processional and recessional music. Mrs. Tharon Greenwood presented the awards and scholarships, and diplomas were given by Mr. John Tanner.

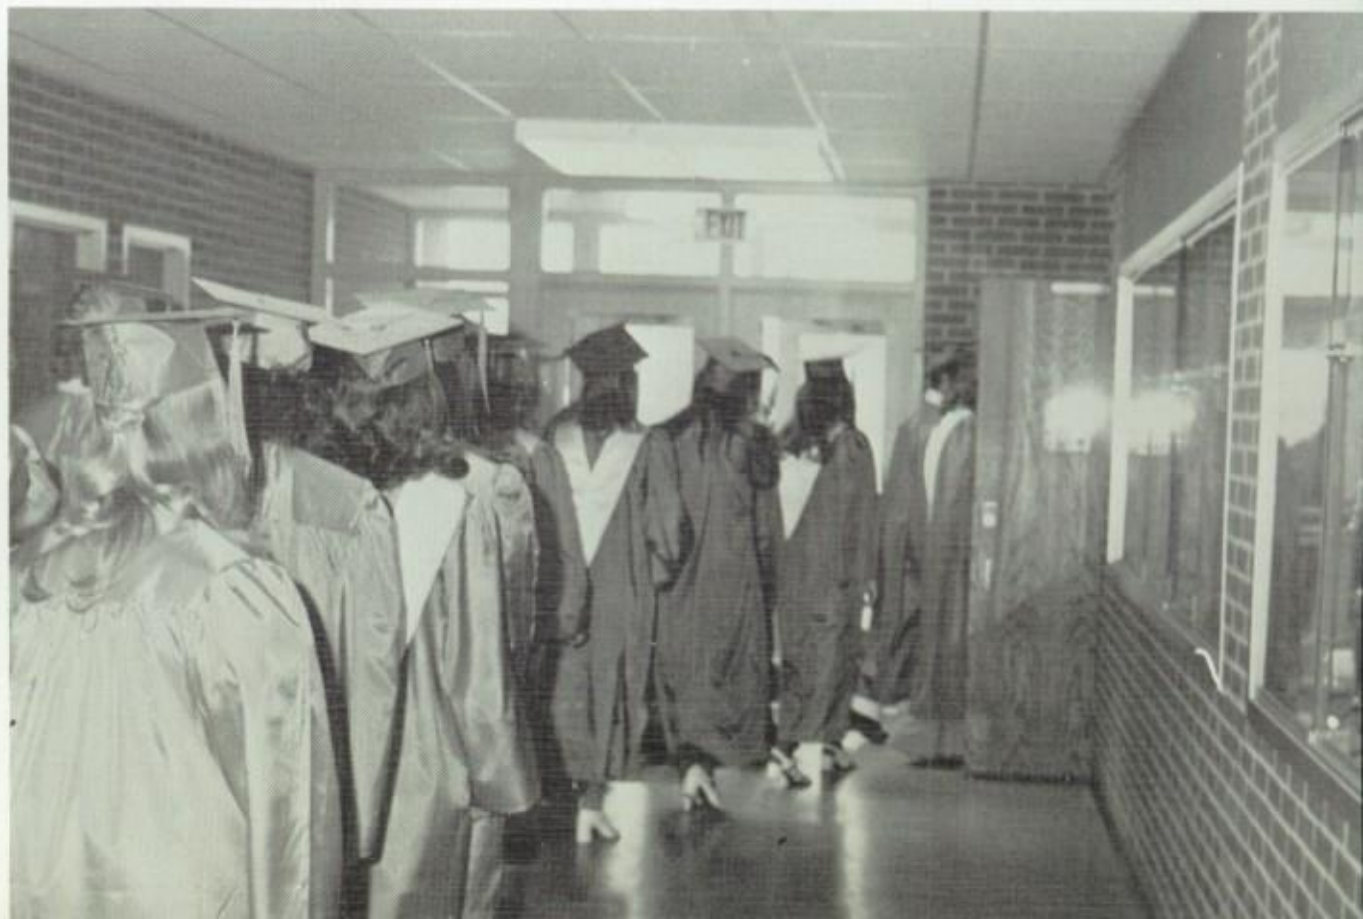

There were 29 seniors graduating.

At last the journey begins . . .

their faces, reflecting a mixture of emotions, as they wait
in anticipation,

just as they did on their first day.

The music starts . . .

and the processional brings them in to where parents and friends await them.

The speaker tells of things that are past,
and speculates
on the future,

as they sit and listen and think . . .

until finally they get their diplomas,
and leave the school.

*This is not the end, neither is it
the beginning of the end.
It is the end of the beginning . . .*

HONORS

If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer.
Let him step to the music he hears,
however measured or far away.

Henry David Thoreau

Mr. and Ms. BPHS

Mark Mickelson and Pam Boe

Each year a senior boy and girl are chosen on the basis of outstanding representation of the student body as Mr. and Ms. BPHS. Actively involved throughout their high school careers, this year's choices are Mark Mickelson and Pam Boe, both highly deserving of this honor.

Junior High Basketball

Surging with the determination and energy of a new machine, the Big Piney Junior High Rustlers enjoyed a spectacular year, finished the football season undefeated for the first time in Rustler history. To honor the members of the football team, a special banquet was held at the completion of the season.

The basketball team, although not quite as successful as the football team, had an active and educational year, profiting greatly from their diligent efforts in preparation for athletic competition in their future high school years.

Shown above are several members of the team warming up at the half time of another exciting Rustlers' basketball game.

ELEMENTARY

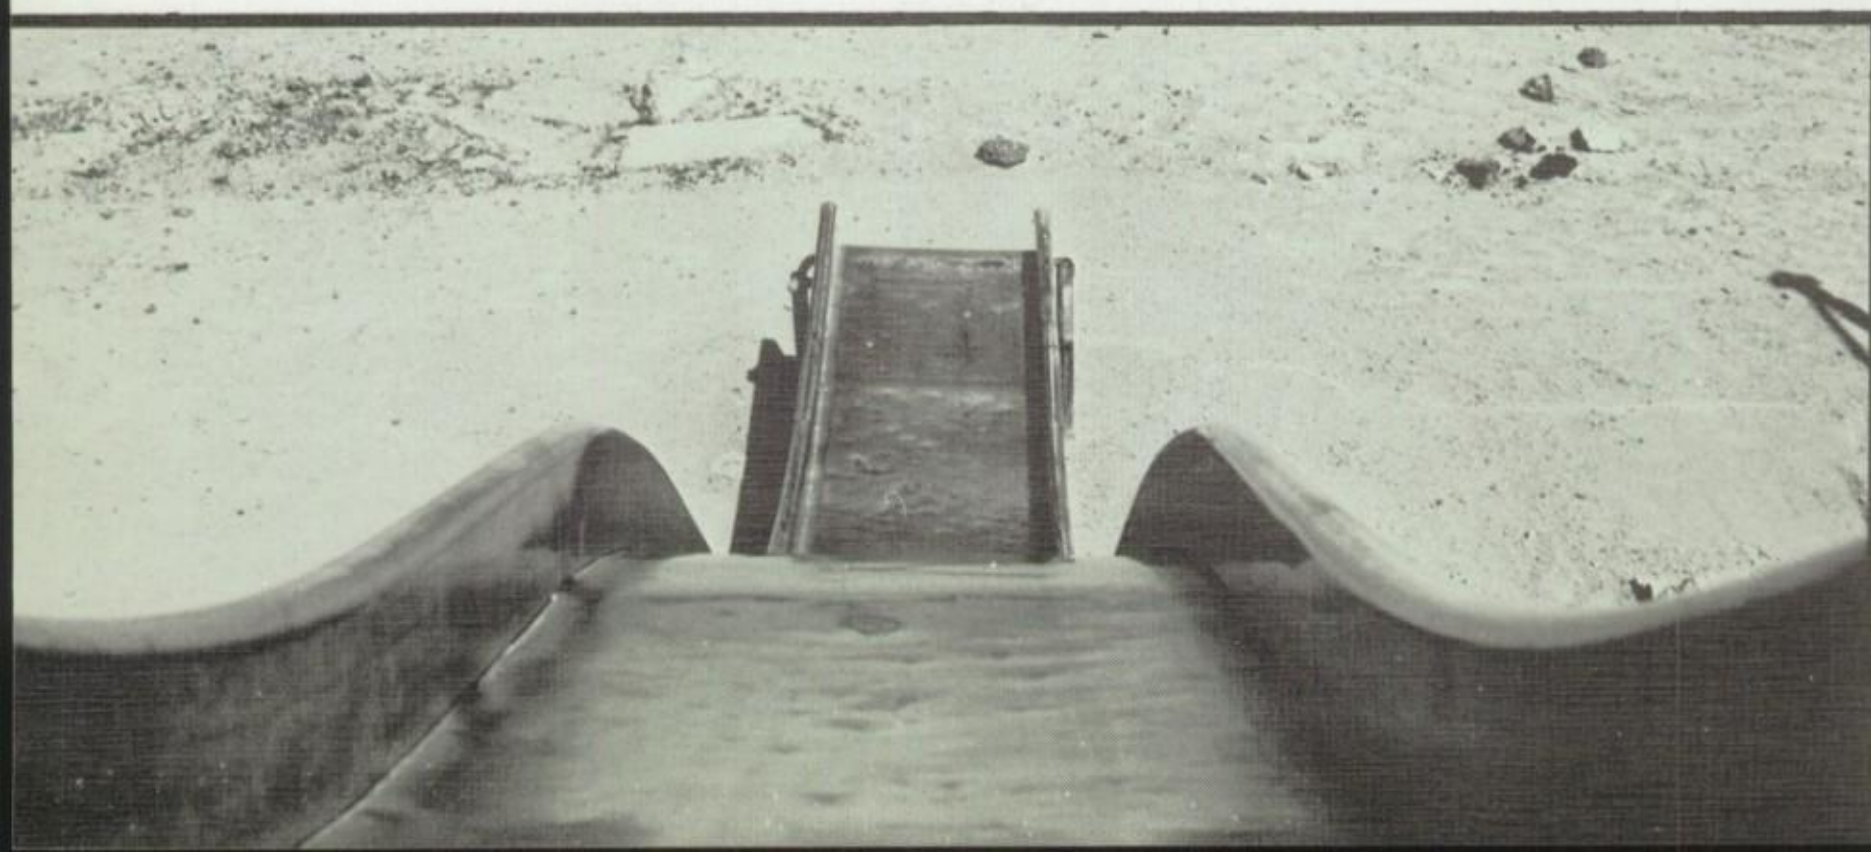

... your children are not your children.

They come through you, but not from you, and though they are with you yet they belong not to you.

You may give them your love,
but not your thoughts,
for they have their own thoughts.

You may house their bodies,
but not their souls,
for their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow,
which you cannot visit,
not even in your dreams ...

The hour has come.

*The summer is past,
and the harvest ended.*

*The earth rolls upon her wings,
and the sun giveth
his light by day,
and the moon giveth
her light by night, and the stars also give their light,*

*and they give light to each other,
such as every man in his time and season.*
